Technology, Values And The Justice System Symposium And Conference

January 16 - 17, 2004

University of Washington School of Law
William H. Gates Hall

Technology, Values, and the Justice System is a landmark conference exploring the use of information technologies in the justice system, and the resulting societal ramifications. It will also specifically explore the State of Washington's Access to Justice Technology Bill of Rights which reinforces a core value of the United States — Equal Justice for All — in decision-making affecting the use of technology in the justice system.

Featured speakers:

The Honorable Gerry Alexander, Chief Justice, Washington Supreme Court

Dr. Vinton Cerf, Co-designer of the TCP/IP protocols and architecture of the Internet

Professor Helen Nissenbaum, Information Law Institute, New York University

Professor Morton Horwitz, Harvard Law School

Ada Shen-Jaffe, Esquire, Director, Columbia Legal Services

The Honorable John McKay, U.S. Attorney, former President, Legal Services Corporation

Hosted by Washington Law Review, University of Washington School of Law, and the Washington State Access to Justice Technology Bill of Rights Committee

Co-sponsored by The Shidler Center for Law, Commerce and Technology and the Information School at the University of Washington
